Stepan Pawlyszcze, a student of Szczecin University, was sentenced in May 1966 to three years' imprisonment. During his previous stay in the Ukrainian SSR where he pursued his postgraduate studies of Ukrainian Mr. Pawlyszcze obtained copies of V. Symonenko's unpublished poems and the diary<sup>1</sup> as well as of a manuscript by a number of anonymous authors entitled "On the Pogruzheni'sky Trial" which deals with some suppressed facts connected with the arson of certain sections of the State Public Library of the Academy of Sciences of the Ukrainian SSR<sup>2</sup> and also with certain other events, such as the secret trial, ending in some death sentences, of a group of jurists who attempted to raise before the Supreme Soviet and the U.N. the question of the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic's constitutional rights. Back in Poland, Mr. Pawlyszcze duplicated these materials, but, before any of this literature could be spread, he was reported to the U.B. (the State Security Office) by the person who had provided the duplicator. Some other students seem to have been sentenced in this connection as well, but no details are as yet available.
